The Career Skills project approaches its end!

At the end of October, the Career Skills Project partners met for the last time in Beauvais, France to assess the achievements of the 3-year initiative funded by the European Commission.

The meeting was hosted by the International Network of Cités des métiers, which includes 33 information-consulting units in 6 countries, with which we shared the results of our work.

The main product of the project is the European career skills platform app.career-skills.eu, which aims to help people of all ages improve their career skills. The platform has 670 registered users and more than 3,200 unique visitors.

The site introduces users to 12 identified key career skills, described in a 3-level framework - basic, intermediate and advanced. With the help of an online tool, anyone - from a student to an expert-level professional - can assess their skills and improve them through a freely available online course. It includes 12 modules with a total of 360 varied exercises. The course was piloted with 520 career consultants and clients who provided excellent feedback.

The online map of career services presents over 420 career registered career centers, consultants and organizations in Europe. In the "Network" section of the site, career consultants can share information about their initiatives, events, tools and best practices. All products will remain freely available in English, German, French, Bulgarian, Greek and Finnish until the end of 2025.

The project has been coordinated by the Business Foundation for Education in Bulgaria and involves the University of Jyväskylä in Finland, Réseau International des Cités des métiers in France, VHS Cham in Germany, the Institute of Entrepreneurship Development in Greece and Aspire-international in the UK.
